EXCITING AND DANGEROUS

By Larry Kornfeldt

TEENA listened to the wind howling rattling the shutters, and wondered how the bout ended. The baby was sleeping soundly, but Teena wondered why she didn't awaken. She couldn't understand how the baby could sleep through all the noise the wind was making.

Teena was sitting with Jane while the baby's father was out wrestling. The baby's mother sat in the living room reading her husband and hoping the day would come soon when Joe Young would be able to give up this means of earning his livelihood and go to college. He only had to earn money.

Joe Young had been a champion wrestling champion. When he got [illegible] a wrestling match he was one of the crowds that [illegible] to see. He was a good fighter and a wrestler. He never [illegible] anything as hard as he [illegible]

She felt sick and weary. Her arms ached [illegible] She started into the house again and [illegible] back. She sat on the stoop [illegible] seeing [illegible] able her head throbbing. She hadn't [illegible] her charge. Little Lola was gone. [illegible] Where?

"T[illegible]A. What are you doing here?" She looked up. It was Pete Langdon. Train came and he [illegible] Pete was the policeman who walked the [illegible] beat.

"What happened here?" But he didn't wait for a reply. He took her arm and almost carried her across the street to the [illegible] He helped her down on a chair near the [illegible] Mr. Breen the pharmacist, came over.

"[illegible]ing with Joe and Mary Young a [illegible] them," when a big man came in. He [illegible] and took the baby. When I looked out [illegible] saw a grey coat [illegible] down, but when I got there [illegible] was [illegible] away. The last [illegible] on the license was [illegible] 22."

"Say," Mr. Breen said shaking his head [illegible] things happening all at once to [illegible] Young. [illegible] newscaster [illegible] reported [illegible] seeing the Gang [illegible] a car [illegible] and [illegible] Has [illegible] worse [illegible]."

[illegible] Teena [illegible]

"[illegible] the pharmacist said.

"Teena [illegible] happened after [illegible] Young's [illegible] the [illegible] night."
